
Meeting the Special Needs of All Your Students

A Webinar Series with Cheryll Duquette

In this series of three webinars, Cheryll Duquette, author of Finding a Place for Every Student, will discuss and demonstrate many simple, practical ways you can identify and meet the special needs of students. Cheryll will provide the background you need to meet the diverse challenges found in a typical classroom — from autism and mental health issues to physical and intellectual disabilities. Cheryll will encourage you to reflect on your own practice as you explore belonging and differentiated learning. You'll come away with a wealth of easy-to-use, adaptable strategies that you can use in your classroom the next day!

The 3 hands-on webinars provide an opportunity to ask questions and share your experience with Cheryll and with your colleagues. Participation includes a free Finding a Place for Every Student ebook for you to keep. The webinars are organized around 3 important aspects of student learning: social, academic, and behavior management. Sign up for all 3 webinars and receive a recording that you can refer to again and again as the school year evolves.

The Details

Webinar Session #1 (October 6) – Social Belonging Approaches to Classroom Management

Discover tried-and-tested ways to build a supportive, inclusive classroom community where students belong and feel valued. The webinar will explore techniques to help you create a learning community where students with physical, emotional, and intellectual issues all feel welcome, safe, and engaged. Cheryll will offer an in-depth exploration of

- developing a strong and trusting relationship with students
- fostering and supporting positive relationships among peers
- modeling respect, kindness, and acceptance

Webinar Session #2 (October 27) – Meeting the Academic Needs of All Your Students

This hands-on webinar will help you identify where your students are academically and how to nurture their growth and measure improvement. It will explore the importance of observation and suggests guidelines for measuring individual student success. Direct, explicit instruction is essential for some students — this webinar will show you how to incorporate these techniques in a busy classroom. Cheryll will work with you on

- adopting differentiated instruction (DI) successfully in your classroom
- providing feedback, motivating students, and incorporating growth mindset principles
- using direct instruction (explicit instruction) to improve student learning

Webinar Session #3 (November 3) – Student Behavior in Diverse Classrooms

Student behavior is one of the biggest challenges that teachers face. Our diverse classrooms include students with special needs, fears, and backgrounds. In this webinar, Cheryll will offer 25 concrete strategies to manage day-to-day behavior and nurture respect and acceptance among class peers. You will learn

- specific ways to develop appropriate classroom behavior in all students
- methods for working with students with exceptionalities, including ADHD, autism, and FASD
- simple ideas for adopting culturally responsive instruction and learning in your classroom
